

Village of Solomon goes SOLAR at the Community Center

The Village of Solomon Environmental Dept. hosted a 2 week long 7kW rooftop solar panel installation training with 3 trainees from the Nome area who registered. The Install was directed by the non-profit organization, GRID Alternatives Tribal Dept. and funded by their sister organization, Tribal Solar Accelerator Fund (who received a lump sum from Wells Fargo to distribute via grant application program through TSAF). The Village of Solomon was only 1 of 2 Alaska tribe's to receive the funding in a nationwide call for proposals.

After many unexpected challenges, the inverter, battery storage, solar panels, and all the wiring had been completed by August 1st. With that, the Install crew was able to turn off the generator and completely run the facility solely on the panels and battery storage. It was at this time, the Environmental Coordinator fought back tears. The planning for this project and idea for this project, began in 2017.

VOS hired Brewster Bohn to film and document the entire process of the install, which had been edited and produced on the Village of Solomon's Environmental Coordinator youtube page as a documentary. The install crew fought climate change and were forced to lay 18 pv modules on the roof on a Saturday, which prompted Cameraman Brewster to assist in laying the mods on the roof. Nome Nugget Newspaper noted that the last rainiest summer was in 1935. The road to Solomon after Bonanza bridge almost washed out due to the heavy rains.

Environmental Coordinator Report

By Deilah Johnson

Hello Village of Solomon! I am excited to continue serving as the Environmental Coordinator as we move forward in accomplishing our environmental goals. We have recently hired a new Environmental Assistant, Amy Johnson who will be working in the office ensuring we are able to provide our tribal community with the most updated research, knowledge and activities in outreach and education as it has always been the forefront of our department. With that being said, please watch out for any virtual gathering announcements as we progress forward in our EPA FY2022. We have successfully managed our Indian General Assistance Program Grant from 2013 even throughout a pandemic.

I am proud to also acknowledge our 7kW rooftop solar panel system install that took place at the end of July 2021. The project was funded by Tribal Solar Accelerator Fund through a Wells Fargo grant. The entire install was a true experience. I was able to put my renewable research to the test and got to do real-life hands-on renewable energy in our own community building. I will forever cherish the experience. Tribal member and recent highschool graduate, Brewster Bohn flew to Nome to document the project to which, we produced an hour long youtube documentary available for your viewing on my igap.solomon@gmail.com channel. If you would like to watch the slideshow of photos, that video is also on the channel as well as any other educational videos over the years.

I had been nominated and selected to receive the individual Alaska Energy Efficiency Partnership Awards The Alaska Energy Efficiency Leadership Awards are an initiative of AEEP and is intended to recognize individuals and organizations successfully making strides toward the AEEP's mission of Alaska someday becoming the most energy-efficient state in the nation.

We have officially received a partnership with the US Army Corp of Engineers Alaska Division, on an environmental study in Solomon primarily focused on the fish & bird habitat's and species within our watershed. The study is to take place over the timeframe of 1 year. Fully funded by the Army Corps, we will have their biologist travel to Solomon each season to study and document as no such data exists to date. This will complement our water monitoring data we had collected over the course of a 5 year period. We'd like to continue collecting water quality data, if you or someone you know is interested in the seasonal position of collecting water samples – please send an email to deilah@villageofsolomon.org or go on our website, print the employment application and email that to the tribal coordinator.

As always, if you have any suggestions on how to better serve you or our community in regard to our environment, please contact me directly. I love hearing your feedback and suggestions.

Development Coordinator Report

The Village of Solomon has been managing their CDC grant in response to COVID, which has provided internet support and electricity assistance. With that, the tribe has also been able to purchase a new office vehicle. The extended CDC grant will close June 2022. The Council has directed me toward developing our very own Affordable Housing Program, updates and announcements moving forward will be coming 2023.

With our new LEDP in the final draft stages, I will have more projects in the grant writing aspect for the tribe. LEDP should be completed and approved by the end of the year. I look forward to continuing the grant writing for our tribe as we achieve many more community goals and dreams.

UAF BRISTOL BAY CAMPUS/ SOLAR DECATHALON

VOS Tribal member and Environmental Coordinator, Deilah Johnson participated in the 2022 Solar Decathlon, hosted by National Renewable Energy Lab in finals as the only team in the design competition representing Alaska. Deilah had graduated the UAF Sustainable Energy endorsement program in 2019, her former professor asked if she'd be interested in joining another class, just to compete. She was asked Spring 2022, accepted by fall semester and got to work with her class, which started out with 10 students, more than half were engineers or architects by major. By second semester, there were 4, none of which were engineering students. The team decided to base their project design on the Village of Solomon's purchased corner lot in Nome and went to work on all aspects of the design of a new single family home located in Climate zone 8, a subarctic climate with nothing but the occupants experience in mind as they moved forward with their design goals. After competing virtually against 101 collegiate teams across the globe, they were selected as 1 of 10 to advance to the finals. This required a 60+ page narrative of all details of the design, a 90 second media pitch, a physical small scale exhibit (constructed out of legos) and an 8 minute presentation to compete in person at the National Renewable Energy Lab in Golden, Colorado. After a 15 minute jury panel discussion once their presentation was heard, the following day they were awarded 3rd place in their division. They designed a hybrid single family home, made of four 40' shipping containers and traditional stick frame with post beam foundation complete with one arctic entry way and one game processing room for subsistence activities, and of course a 15kW rooftop solar panel placed on a single slope roof. The team, Asriavik, gifted their trophy to now retired UAF instructor Mark Mastellar.

Tribal Coordinator

“My name is Sherri Lewis, I am the granddaughter of the late Frances Wright of Solomon. My Inupiaq name is Kamouyuk. I enjoy subsistence activities, taking walks, long summer rides in the country and spending time with family. After living in Golovin for 30+ years, I moved to Nome a little over 3 years ago. I have always had a passion for tribal government and am excited to be working in this field once again. “

Did someone say New Housing?

Affordable Housing Strategic Program Plan Update

The VOS Council has been meeting regularly for final drafts and plans in implementing their first ever, Affordable Housing Plan. With the recent pandemic, the housing scarcity across the Region had only become more visible. The Council has recognized this as an epidemic and when the US Treasury allocated the tribe federal funds, the plan was to ensure the community receives as much support in the best ways possible. The Council decided to obligate a percentage toward hiring a B&B Coordinator, purchase lots within the City of Nome to encourage VOS new homeownership mirroring Bering Straits Regional Housing Authority homeownership programs, continue the need for electricity and internet support to households, provide CARES kits to households, and renovate the garage at the current office building into a new apartment. During quarantine matters amid the pandemic crisis within Nome, the upstairs apartment was needed to assist overcrowded households in mitigating the spread of COVID19. The tribe recognizes the need for more housing and wants to ensure moving forward, tribal members will have access to appropriate living conditions.

With that, the tribe has also received their first Indian Housing Block Grant to purchase a tiny home on wheels to serve as an isolation home when/if needed by tribal members needing to quarantine from their home in order to protect elderly and the youth in their households. The tiny home on wheels will tentatively be delivered on the last barge 2022.
